FOREWORD

Spain, warm and colorful, has suggested to the Seniors, an art theme for this year's Lantern. The Seniors hope that this book will give a clear impression of all that Eastern has been to them: color, warmth, and inspiration.

IN APPRECIATION OF OUR FACULTY

It seems to be the fate of many when serving most ably, to go "unwept, unhonored, and unsung." Eastern's faculty has been taken too much for granted, I now realize since becoming a senior. Let me take this opportunity then to express my appreciation, small tribute though it may be, though by so doing I may be reversing all precedent.

The instructors and advisers exert a tremendous influence over each and every student they come in contact with. It was the encouraging support of a teacher that brought many of us through that first strange year as sophomores; it was the spirit and enthusiasm of the faculty that made possible many of the extra curricular activities during our junior year, and now it is the friendships which we share with teachers as well as with students that make us loath to leave Eastern.

A SENIOR.

DWIGHT H. RICH, Principal

Four years ago Eastern High School history was started by a group of nine hundred twenty-seven pupils. It rested upon them to found the traditions upon which incoming classes were to build. They set their ideals high and formed these traditions upon this basis. The result has been that the members of this senior class have accepted these and carried forward the fine work done by the other pupils who have been graduated before. This class is to be congratulated for its ability to portray such a complete picture of school activities within this volume. As the years pass on memories will be refreshed by looking through the pages of this book. It should be with a sense of gratitude that you, as pupils, will be able to look back upon the record of progress achieved this past year.

On behalf of the other members of the faculty and myself, I congratulate you.

DWIGHT H. RICH.

FAYE BAUMGARDNER, Assistant Principal

Faye Baumgardner

When I first entered Eastern High School last June, it loomed a great building, with cool, empty halls, locked rooms, and with activity centering only in its offices. In September, Eastern was swarming with students, all of them strangers to me. With those students came the Eastern spirit. Soon old friendships were renewed, new friendships were made and those of us who were new felt at home in the group. No longer were there strangers. The work of the year had begun. To you who are graduating from Eastern High School, commencement marks a time of sadness and of gladness. For three years you have been a real part of the Eastern spirit. You regret leaving the school, leaving friends and classmates. Yet there is that eagerness which brings about the desire to try your wings outside the doors of school. We, who are your teachers and advisers, want you to have that eagerness and the chance to satisfy it. We congratulate you upon your commencement.

May your experiences at Eastern make you aware of your opportunities that you may be successful in the fulfillment of your ambitions.

FAYE BAUMGARDNER.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

The six semesters of English under the direction of Mildred Toogood cover a wide range of material. The course extends all the way from grammar and composition, the fundamentals of language, to literature, its crowning achievement. The writing of themes, which has been stressed this year, makes for good usage and appreciation of language. A definite number of books for home reading is required each semester.

The outline of the course has been completely changed, although as yet only part of the new arrangement has been carried into effect. The revised course is as follows:

English 3—Grammar and composition.
English 4—American literature and themes.
English 5 and 6—English literature and themes.
English 7—Choice of Dramatics, Public Speaking, Modern world —literature, Grammar, Composition I.
English 8—Choice of Composition II, Creative Writing, Journalism.

The library with Mildred Davis in charge is very useful to the English department. One of its best features is the fact that it is open only to the faculty and students of Eastern.

Lora Knevels, G. E. Chadwick, Russell Gilson, William Odam

SOCIAL SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

The past, present, and future of society are presented to the students through their study of the Social Sciences. George E. Chadwick, who directs the work in the social science department, purposes to lay the foundation of sound citizenship by the study of past achievements and present problems.

A world history course open to all students explains the conditions of today through a study of yesterday. All seniors are required to make an intensive study of United States history. This is valuable to every young American, for he should know of the evolution of self-government, the rise of commercial power, and the development of American culture. Economics, which is an elective subject for seniors, is the study of man as he works for a living. The subject is presented in such a way as to assist the student to an understanding of his place in the busy world of today.

Life is made up of social questions. The successes and failures of the men of the past and present mark well worn path-ways. Just which one of these roads the students should travel is discussed in the Civics-Sociology class. Every opinion affirmative or negative is requested, considered, and discussed. All the above courses afford an excellent opportunity for outside research, and add zest and vividness to all other reading.

LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT

Eastern teaches three foreign languages—Latin, Spanish, and French. Many students elect these languages because they are required for some college course in which they are interested. Many more realize that aside from fulfilling college entrance requirements, the study of a foreign language is very helpful to them in other ways, especially in understanding and appreciating the derivation, meaning, use, and beauty of words in their own language.

Work in the Latin department, of which Inez Cole is the director, is so arranged that if students enter senior high school after completing one year's junior high work, they may read short stories of Roman life, Caesar's Commentaries, Cicero's Orations and Letters, Selections from Ovid's Metamorphoses, and Virgil's Aeneid. W. B. Anderson heads the work in Spanish, which comprises a two-year course. During the time from 1919 to 1928, Mr. Anderson acted as instructor of English at Robert College, Constantinople, Turkey, and instructor in French and Spanish at the University of Michigan and Michigan State College. This year the Spanish department introduced two new text books which combine grammar and reading. William D. Sage directs the two-year course in French. The aim of this department is to so teach the student that at the end of his study he will be able to carry on an ordinary conversation, read stories, plays, and newspapers. The geography, history, and customs of France add background to the course.

Lois Manning, M. A. Leach, Hyrtl C. Feeman, H. C. Lange

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

At Eastern the science department, headed by M. A. Leach, offers four subjects: biology, physiology, chemistry, and physics. The biology division consists of zoology the first semester, and botany the second. As an aid in the instruction of the former, live animals are kept and a museum of mounted animals is being collected. An excursion through the Battle Creek sanatorium was made in the fall by the students. The botany classes add to the interest of the study and the collections by field trips throughout the city and outlying districts. A one-semester course in physiology gives the pupil a general knowledge of his physical self so that he may follow out an intelligent plan of personal hygiene.

In the chemistry section, the enrollment this year exceeded the capacity of the room, and classes were operating forty-two periods a week. The newly organized chemistry club gives those who are especially interested an opportunity to continue and enlarge their contact with this science.

Physics treats of mechanics, heat, magnetism, electricity, sound, and light. This year an experiment consisting of the unit plan of instruction, together with individual projects completed by each pupil, was conducted in cooperation with the Education Department of the Teachers College of Columbia University. The science department has received through the good graces of several public-minded citizens and the activities of the Science Club, some quite valuable pieces of apparatus, among which are a Tesler coil, a static machine, and some Roentgen-ray apparatus.

MATHEMATICS DEPARTMENT

A noticeable change in the mathematics requirements for Lansing city schools took place in the past year. Mathematics is no longer required for graduation, although college entrance demands it. It still is popular, however, as evidenced by the fact that no class has less than twenty-eight or thirty pupils.

Herbert Fox is the head of the department at Eastern and has done much towards its successful organization. He received his training at the Universities of Illinois and Michigan. Every spring, he widens his interests and gives generously of his time to the coaching of Eastern's champion tennis teams.

Two semesters of algebra taught from the new text by Stone and Mallory, supplement the two semesters in junior high. Problems which were extremely difficult or even impossible in arithmetic, suddenly become ridiculously simple when worked by substituting letters and symbols for the unknown quantities. In geometry, the science of form, students learn to reason logically and increase their efficiency. For those who wish to go deeper into the study of mathematics—especially for those who intend to study engineering—one semester of solid geometry and one of trigonometry are offered. A new solid geometry text by McCormick was adopted this year. Trigonometry might be called a combination of arithmetic, algebra, and geometry. It is the basis of the measurements used in surveying, engineering, mechanics, geodesy, and astronomy.

Without mathematics, the number and importance of our scientific and architectural achievements would be quite insignificant. Mathematics is both necessary and important.

INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT

In the industrial department, which is headed by D. W. Bradford, an important change has been made this year. Previously the juniors and seniors have been allowed to work in the factories or out at various trades alternate weeks. Now they are in school every week, each day being divided between the school shops and their classes.

The annex is a temporary building equipped with all necessary tools for teaching automotive work. The equipment contains a buffer machine for cleaning valves and pistons, a grinder for sharpening tools, a drill press, a forge for blacksmith work, a machine press for removing and assembling parts under high pressures, and a complete line of bench tools. Pupils have the opportunity of learning the construction of all types of engines and the practice of making repairs for automobiles, many of which belong to students or their friends. Airplane and automobile engines are kept to help the student understand their construction and operation.

The woodshop is equipped for cabinet work, and the printshop with everything necessary for school printing. Technical drawing and sheet-metal work are also offered. Eastern has one small radio room where those who are interested study the construction and operation of transmitting and receiving apparatus. Many build their own sets. A number of the industrial boys have been trained to help with the stage work, and they do most of the carpentry, shifting of scenery, and controlling of lights, as well as operating the moving picture machines used in the school.

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

Commercial education in Eastern aims not only to provide a training in the skills which are employed in commercial vocations, but an understanding of the highly sensative social relationships into which the graduates must fit in order to continue as useful members of business society. The range and thoroughness of subject matter, the physical equipment and the teaching personnel of this department challenges the students to give their best efforts so they may stand the crucial test of efficient performance upon entering business positions, and take their place as able citizens in the modern community life. Ralph B. Peterman serves ably as the head of this department.

The department is equipped with an office practice suite of four rooms, well equipped with filing, dictating, calculation, and adding machines. Another room is reserved for mimeographing and duplicating, and yet another to reception and consultation use. For those who have elected salesmanship, there is an exhibition room of manufacturers' products for demonstrating and selling. Two rooms are devoted to typewriting. Commercial geography, commercial law, and office practice fit the student for a practical application of his commercial knowledge and give a finishing touch to the course.

Eva Carrett, Irene Patterson, Ruth Freeland, Bernice Vollmer

HOME ECONOMICS DEPARTMENT

A prominent educator recently said, "The purpose of Home Economics is to offer to every individual a training which will inspire and enable him to maintain the home that has been, in building the best type of home for the world that is to be." Miss Madeline Thompson, the supervisor of the Home Economics department, is endeavoring to educate the students for home living. The field of content in this course must naturally be much broader than a mere knowledge of how to cook and how to mend. In the curricula we find the work outlined under such headings as: Foods and Nutrition, Textiles and Clothing, Home Management, Child Development and Family Relationships, in contrast to the former Cooking and Sewing.

In the method of teaching there is coming to be a shift from things of relative unimportance to those which actually determine the happiness and efficiency of the home. For example, the ability to carry on an interesting conversation is considered quite as important as the ability to bake a perfect pie; the ability to appreciate the share of a family's income to be spent for clothes is considered fully as important as the ability to stitch straight seams. The boys and girls who are taking this course are beginning to realize that tolerance, understanding, consideration, and self-respect are as important in home life as well-cooked meals, modish dress, or properly spaced pictures on the wall.

MUSIC AND ART DEPARTMENTS

The music and art departments, although not very closely connected within the school, were both instituted for practically the same purpose. The aim of each is to instill in the student a love of the beautiful. The music department has flourished under the leadership of W. R. McIntire. The band now has 77 members; the orchestra, 53; girls' glee club, 42; boys' glee club, 68; Madrigal choir, 48, and girls' band, 30. The two glee clubs and the orchestra cooperated in presenting the opera, "Chimes of Normandy," which was given during the first semester. A concert was given by the band in the fall. The Madrigal choir and the girls' band are both new organizations. The former is a product of this semester, and is chosen from the members of the two glee clubs.

The art department is under the directon of Virginia Feeser. General Art is designed primarily for students who have had no previous art training except that received in required courses in previous grades. The work covers the fundamental principles of drawing and painting, and forms a good foundation for subsequent study. Of the two semesters of Applied Art, the first acts as a basis for artistic judgment of interior decoration and personal dress problems. Applied Art II offers experience in various crafts conducive to the worthy and happy use of leisure time. Art Appreciation aims to give a foundation for a real appreciation of the art treasures of the world and to build up an intelligent basis for artistic criticism. Commercial Art takes up the subject of lettering and poster design for advertising. Students in this class have found the various methods of reproduction especially interesting and have enjoyed making wood engravings and dry point etchings.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENT

Physical training is required in the sophomore year; thereafter, it is an elective subject. Eastern provides one large gymnasium for classes, and one small room for physical efficiency tests and posture work. The boys' physical training and swimming classes are under the direction of R. A. Winston and W. A. Graff. The work in the former consists of gymnastics, calisthenics, games and relays, with a series of tests such as basket shooting, pushups, high jumping, chinning, and shot putting. Swimming is elective throughout the three years of high school. "Every student of Eastern a swimmer" is the motto of the department. Instruction in the various strokes, in diving, in life-saving, and in watermanship makes up the course, and games and relays add to the interest.

Evelyn Hutchison has charge of the girls' gymnasium and swimming classes. The physical training work is placed on a competitive basis by means of squads. Various games are played, and the outdoor work contains a great deal of hiking and camping. High and broad jumping, distance running, baseball and basketball throwing help to develop steadiness and endurance. The swimming course for girls is carried out by efficiency test work. The girls are divided into three classes according to their ability to swim. A large chart is placed in the natatorium with the requirements and each girl's name on it so that she may watch her own progress. A Life Saving Club has been organized and is conducted in cooperation with this department.

The graduating class of June '32 began their social activities with the J-Hop on March 6, 1931. The dance was in Eastern's gym, which was gayly trimmed in orchid, yellow, and green, and the favors were dance programs. Geraldine Whitney headed the committee.

The closed party of this class was held November 6, 1931, with Tom Spurway as general chairman. A program given in a series of short acts displayed unexpected talent. The full attendance danced to the music of the Ross Racketeers.

March 4, 1932 brought the Senior-Junior Prom, called the "Pirate Promenade." Alfred Abent was the general chairman. The gym was decorated in orange, black, and yellow. Corsages and paper guns were given as favors, and Jack DeCamp and His Little Old Band furnished the music.

Other events which concluded a successful three years for the Senior Class were:

May 20, 1932—Senior Prom. Bruce Skidmore, general chairman.

June 9, 1932—Senior Day Program. Tom Spurway, general chairman.

June 12, 1932—Baccalaureate.

June 15, 1932—Senior Banquet. Leona Van Osdol, general chairman.

Thomas, Bissonette, Mr. Van Liere, Sackett, Gardner

SENIOR B CLASS

President - - - - Kenneth Bissonette
Vice-President - - - William Sackett
Secretary - - - - Virginia Thomas
Treasurer - - - - - John Gardner
Girls' Athletic Director - Burdine Fiedler
Boys' Athletic Director - William Brown
Student Council Representatives—
Donna Purchis, Katherine Bentla
George Hoag, Charles Spagnuolo

The Senior B Class entered Eastern in January, 1930. The first social event was a class picnic at Island Lake, Dimondale; refreshments, games, and swimming acquainted the newly assembled classmates. The class officers served as the committee of this initial event, with Ella Marshall supervising.

The crowning event of the junior year, the J-Hop, fell on March sixth. This was wholly successful. The gym was decorated in orchid, green, and yellow in favor of spring. Stoffer's Pennsylvanians furnished the music, and dance programs were given as favors. This party was a result of the combined efforts of the Junior Class.

The Senior-Junior Prom was promoted just as the name implies. Wally Bennett's Orchestra played amidst blue and white decorations. Corsages of sweet peas and baby's breath were given as favors. Virginia Thomas served as the junior chairman.

Rollen Mack led in the planning for the Kids Closed Party of March 19, 1932. Furnishings of davenports, chairs, lamps, and tables filled the gym sidelines. Music was provided for dancing; substantial refreshments were served, and numerous games were played.

The assembly program given by the '33 class was of Spanish type and design. It was given April 14. Victor Spagnuolo acted as general chairman.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The voice of the students—the council.

This year's activities were started in September with Thomas Morris as the President. Because of his capability and resourcefulness, President Morris built up a new council that handled the various problems in a manner that left no doubt as to the leadership of its members. February saw Ed Whitney take the chair of office and start committees functioning which covered every phase of school life.

The courtesy committee promoted a courtesy week based on the result of written tests which were taken by the entire student body. Two features of the week were an all-school ballot for the king and queen of courtesy, and the assembly program.

Thomas Morris

Other active committees were for library, pep meetings, moral ethics, and friendly relations. The latter had charge of all the correspondence with other schools, and they endeavored to bind more strongly the bonds of friendliness, not only within their own school but with other high schools of Michigan.

It was the aim of both councils to govern the attendance and discipline and to promote government by the entire student body.

EASTERNER STAFF

Responsibility for the publication of the Easterner, the school paper, during the first semester fell upon a staff composed of volunteers from the whole school. At the beginning of the second semester, this plan was changed. Under the new policy, this work was done by the seventh hour journalism class taught by Miss Nellie Grohe, past staff adviser. A great improvement was shown in the technique of the articles. Special columns, a variety of pictures, and interesting features were some of the improvements made during the last semester.

A temporary staff was appointed for each issue from the thirty-five juniors and seniors who were in the class.

LANTERN BOARD

This 1932 Lantern is the fourth to be published by the Seniors of Lansing Eastern. In May of 1931 the board began plans, and weekly meetings were held throughout the year.

Under the excellent leadership of Miss Smith, literary adviser, Miss Feeser, art adviser, and Mr. Peterman, business adviser, the staff united energy, enthusiasm, persistance, and cooperation in the task of editing a year book which would truly illustrate the activities and aspirations of Eastern and all Easternites.

BANKING COUNCIL

To start a thing is comparatively easy, but to boost it to a high standard and keep it there requires the efforts of each individual concerned. The Banking Council, recognized as one of Eastern's most important organizations, is to be complimented on its efficiency and success in promoting thrift in Eastern. Encouragement and clever advertising did much to keep up the banking spirit.

During the first semester, Gartley Zemer was head cashier, assisted by Robert Satterlee and home room cashiers. The second semester, Stuart Frankford took his place with Donald Boichot assistant. Though a few changes were made in the home room personnel, the group remained about the same. It was ably sponsored by Miss Reynolds, an untiring banking enthusiast.

During the second semester the Banking Council consisted of the following cashiers:

Stuart Frankford
Donald Boichot
Leona Nelson

EXCHANGE ASSEMBLIES

Relations between high schools have invariably been conducted on a competitive basis, but a new contact has recently been established among the schools of the Five A League for the purpose of developing cooperation and friendship. This relationship is secured through the production of exchange assemblies.

The first of these assemblies was sent to Battle Creek on March 13, 1931, a program showing the progress of education. On October 28, 1931, a program was sent to Lansing Central in the form of a Halloween Party. Then on January 7, at Jackson, and on January 11, at Ann Arbor, a program entitled Souvenirs, a musicale, was presented. April 8 a minstrel show was produced as a second program at Battle Creek.

The purpose of these assemblies, in addition to the development of a friendly feeling among the schools, is to widen and deepen student interests. Since a different group produces each program, much new talent is uncovered and student responsibility is encouraged.

All programs are under the supervision of the committee, two of the faculty members collaborating in the production of each.

STUDENT GUIDES

Out of the system of student government has evolved a student-controlled, disciplinary body. This organization, which is subject to the Student Council at all times, was named the Student-Duty Guides. The duties of the organization have been to keep the halls clear during school hours, to maintain discipline in the halls, and to report all cases of misconduct about school to the chief or to the council president.

When first organized, it was thought best to have the person in charge work in close harmony with the school president, so he is appointed by the president himself. This year he was also ordered, through the chief's recommendation to the council, to appoint the chief's official assistant. Between them, the president and chief organize the body each semester, appointing a sergeant to have charge for each school period of the day. He, in turn, controls the individual student guide.

The guides have been "on their toes" this past year in keeping their duties well-performed. Upon recommendations from responsible students, the Students Council authorized the chief to purchase materials, and, with the assistance of the Home-Economics classes, make suitable armbands to be worn by student guides. The service rendered by the student guides has become a valuable part of Eastern's daily life. It deserves the support of every Quaker who loves order and self-government.

ORATORY

Kenneth Beagle, a junior A, represented Eastern in the sub-district oratorical contest by virtue of having won the school contest with his excellent oration "An Appeal to Youth for World Peace."

Kenneth placed second in the subdistrict contest in which eight other schools competed. His oration won him two votes for second place and one vote for first place, thus making the margin of victory very narrow indeed. For his work in oratory Kenneth was awarded a handsomely bound, large sized Webster Dictionary.

Before coming to Eastern last September, Kenneth was a student in Wacousta High School. He graduated from the tenth grade with high honors, having been Valedictorian of his class. Soon after entering Eastern High he became a football enthusiast, and by hard work he secured a place on the first squad. He was treasurer of his Home Room, 3-36, the first semester and president of the Drama Club the second semester.

Next year Kenneth will undoubtedly prove to be one of Eastern's outstanding speakers, since he intends to enter into debating as well as oratory.

DECLAMATION

Alice Webb, a sophomore A, won first place in the school contest and represented Eastern in the sub-district contest. Her declamation was "Toussaint L'Overture."

There were twelve contestants in the sub-district declamation contest; Alice placed fourth. Her delivery was very commendable and she is to be given much credit for her splendid effort. She was awarded a beautifully bound Webster Dictionary.

Alice entered Eastern last September, coming from Walter French Junior where she was active in declamation.

The debate squad next season will be glad to welcome her as a member.

The debate squad during the past season was one of the largest in recent years and afforded many debaters the opportunity to engage in debates without being on the team. Coached by William Odam, the twelve students studied the question sent out for the Michigan High School Debating League. The league, under the supervision of Professor Densmore of the University of Michigan, is made up of nearly three hundred schools. Four preliminary debates are entered in by each school after which the sixty-four schools having the greatest number of points enter the elimination contest. Members of the squad included Edward Macal, Kenneth Beagle, Marie Dalton, John Ross, Dallas Spencer, Marguerite Conklin, Ronald Fiandt, Alice Webb, Jean Webb, Harry Fitch, Evelyn Jarvis, and Lela Keener. The first three students were added to the squad in the spring.

Since the debate squad is the source of supply for the varsity debate team, it is very important in the debate organization. During the past season several members of the squad, who will return next season, gave much promise.

During the season debates were arranged with many surrounding towns and cities in order to give members of the squad experience. Some of these debates were with Hastings, Mason, Coldwater, Eaton Rapids, St. Johns, Lansing Central, Albion, Marshall, and Stockbridge. Not only did these debates serve to give experience to those participating, but they also served to afford further analysis and observation of the question for members of the team.

The debate squad membership is always open to all students who are interested in debate work. It is not necessary that they have experience to be eligible for membership. Many students who have not had confidence in themselves as debaters have become members of the squad only to find that they possessed ability not previously realized or exploited. It is hoped that many more students will avail themselves of this opportunity next year.

DEBATE TEAM

The debate team for the season 1931-32 was composed of Lela Keener, Evelyn Jarvis, Jean Webb and Harry Fitch. The team debated the question, "Resolved, That the State of Michigan Should Enact Legislation Providing for a System of Compulsory Unemployment Insurance." Four State League debates were engaged in, two on the negative side and two on the affirmative. Out of a possible sixteen points the team acquired nine points.

Lela Keener, a veteran of two years and a senior, participated in all league debates and gave an excellent account of herself in every encounter. Lela's debating was characterized by a clear and emphatic delivery that made her a very forceful debater. For her three years' work in debate Lela was awarded a gold debate key.

Evelyn Jarvis was also a veteran of two years and a senior. Evelyn was perhaps one of the most consistent performers of the team. She always showed the results of careful and adequate preparation. Her effective delivery oft-times won her the enthusiastic approval of judges and the reputation of being the most valuable debater. Evelyn was also awarded a gold debate key for her length of service on Eastern's debate teams.

Jean Webb and Harry Fitch were newcomers to the debate team this past year; last spring they were promising members of the debate squad. During the past season their work amply carried out the promise of last year, and these debaters will probably make up the nucleus of the next team. Jean and Harry alternated for third place on the team.

Eastern's debate team engaged in league debates with St. Johns, Ithaca, Grand Rapids Creston, and Flint Central. In the first two debates Eastern finished an easy winner by 4-0 decisions. The team then travelled to Grand Rapids Creston where it lost by a close decision. This debate was given in the afternoon before the entire student body of that school. The last league debate of the season was held in Eastern Auditorium with Flint Central. This was the best debate of the year, both teams being well prepared and experienced so late in the season. The judges voted two to one for Flint.

GIRLS' LEAGUE

The aim of the Girls' League is to coordinate all the extra-curricular activities in which the girls participate, at the same time promoting a more friendly relationship among the girls.

The League was divided into six units, the girls of each class composing one separate unit. The divisions met on alternate weeks to study their assigned topics. The Sophomore B's studied "Vocation"; the Sophomore A's, "Social Standards"; Junior B's, "Recreation"; Junior A's, "Social Service and Welfare"; Senior B's, "Personal Problems and Hygiene", and the Senior A's composed the school efficiency group. The teachers in charge were Miss Cole, Miss Winters, Miss Toogood, Miss Hutchison, Miss Cline, Miss Carrett, Miss Adriance, and Miss Baumgardner.

Two general meetings were held in the large auditorium. The first program consisted of numbers by the girls' band and a play by the Drama Club. An impressive installation ceremony took place at the second when the officers of the first semester handed the insignia of their office to those girls newly elected.

Many worthwhile projects were completed during the year. The Senior A's furnished a girls' rest room and put into use the bulletin board presented to the school by the Class of January, 1931. The Junior A's held a reception for the incoming Sophomores, putting into practice the big sister movement, and also had charge of the welfare work. Several teas were given at various times throughout the year.

During the second semester on April 5, the girls put on a program for a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association which was acclaimed one of the best of the year. On April 28 a Mother and Daughter banquet was given and was greatly enjoyed by the large number present. A fund for needy girls was established during the early part of this semester, the furnishing of the rest room was completed, and a lost and found department was organized.

Much of the success of the League must be attributed to the enthusiasm and interest of the sponsor, Miss Faye Baumgardner. Miss Baumgardner is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyen and Columbia Universities. For three years she taught in Milton Center High School, Ohio, and from 1926 to 1930 was a teacher at Titusville, Pennsylvania. As assistant principal in Eastern, Miss Baumgardner is the director of all extra-curricular activities and has charge of the vocational guidance for girls.

BAND

We are at the crucial football game of the season—Eastern is trailing by one touchdown—although she is knocking at the enemies' goal, she does not seem to have the spirit to carry the pigskin over that last white line. Suddenly from the sidelines the thrilling strains of the school song burst forth—the throngs in the stand rise and sing the words that typify the true spirit of Eastern. On the very next play, the team, fired by the music, makes the touchdown and converts the extra point that wins the game. Once again the band has come to the aid of an Eastern organization with the support that has carried our school to the heights on which she now stands.

Having gained the reputation of being one of the best marching bands in the state, it has also won many laurels through excellent playing. During the past year, the membership has increased from seventy-seven to eighty-nine pieces, and the instrumentation has been made more complete and balanced.

The outside appearances included the Michigan State-Alma football game, the Armistice Day parade, the Chevrolet parade, all our basketball and football games, and many public meetings and entertainments.

ORCHESTRA

Due to the larger instrumentation this year, the orchestra made great advancement. The school purchased two cellos, six violins, and two string basses, while an addition was also made in the brass and woodwind sections. Much of the improvement in the string section was due to the efforts of Mr. Isler Solomon, special director for the group.

During the first semester the orchestra played at the Baccalaureate service, the Senior B play, and the opera, "Chimes of Normandy." They not only played several numbers before and between acts of the opera, but also the opera music which required many hours of outside practice.

At the beginning of the second semester music was furnished for the Senior B play, then work was earnestly commenced on the selections for the annual concert. The appearance at the Baccalaureate and Commencement services ended a very productive season.

Some of the pieces played this year were: "Procession of the Sardar" from the Caucasian Sketches composed by Ippolitov-Ivanov, "Ruy Blas" by Mendolssohn, "Oberon" by Weber, and "Largo" from "The New World Symphony" by Dvorak.

MADRIGAL CHOIR

It is the aim of every musical director to conduct a group of mixed voices which emulate the qualities of an organ. This goal has been attained in Eastern through the organization of the Madrigal Choir.

In its present form the choir, newly organized the second semester, consists of fifty members and a few substitutes. There are six girls singing in each of the first and second soprano sections, and the first and second alto sections. In the male sections—the first and second tenors, baritones, and basses—there are six boys. The other two members are Nelda Treber, the accompanist, and Mr. McIntire, the director of the group.

In preparing for the state contest the group drilled on the following pieces of music: "Cherubic Hymn" by Gretchoninoff-Douglas, "Shepherd's Story" by Dickinson, "Ash Grove", a Welsh air arranged by Jacob; "Grant Me True Courage, Lord" by Bach, "In These Delightful Pleasant Groves" by Purcell, "Now Is the Month of Maying" by Morley, "Beautiful Savior" by Christiansen, and "Hail Smiling Morn" by Spafforth. They also committed to memory the pieces: "Adoramus Te", "Listen to the Lambs", and "Going Home".

Mr. McIntire hopes in time to have a Madrigal Choir of sixty-four members with eight people in each of the eight sections. In the production of the annual school opera next fall, he is planning to choose the leads from this group and use the remainder in the chorus.

Besides the incentive that the chance to be in next year's opera offers, there is still another. It is an honor to be a member of Eastern's Madrigal Choir, as each member is chosen to fill his or her particular chair.

ANNUAL OPERA

On the night of December 17, the "Chimes of Normandy," an opera in three acts, was presented by the combined talents of the girls' and boys' glee clubs.

The cast numbered thirteen, with a chorus of sixty-five and an orchestra of thirty-one pieces. The stage setting which added so much to the effect of the production, was designed by Mr. Kenneth Clarke, aided by the two property men, Arthur Hudson and Charles Howald. Miss Vollmer had charge of the costuming, while Miss Hutchison directed the dancing. The success of the advertising was evident from the large audience that witnessed the production.

The story was based on an old legend that when either the Marquis or his heir, who have been living in exile for many years, return to claim their estate the bells of the chateau, which have been silent since the departure of the old Marquis, will ring again.

Gaspard, an old miser, wishes to marry his niece, Germaine, to the Bailli, principal magistrate of the district. To escape from Gaspard's power, Germaine takes advantage of the privileges of the annual fair being celebrated, and becomes the servant of the Marquis, who has just returned.

Because the villagers have declared the castle haunted, Henri determines to solve the mystery, and finds it is the work of Gaspard who has concealed his treasures there. When the bells of the chateau ring for the first time since the flight of the old Marquis, the miser is driven insane.

The final act represents the grand fete given in honor of the return of Henri to his ancestral home. The miser, having recovered his reason, discloses a great secret which makes the end a happy one.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

The Girls' Glee Club this year consisted of seventy-five voices, an unusually large number for such an organization. It was due to the untiring efforts of Mr. McIntire, the director, in making the work interesting that such an increase was made. During the first semester their entire time was spent in working on the opera "Chimes of Normandy". Many laborious hours outside of class were given for this production, which was unquestionably very successfully presented.

The second semester the girls worked on the "Chorus of Seraphim" from "Paradise Lost", and "The Call", which they sang for a meeting of the Girls' League. They learned "Fly Singing Bird, Fly", which was a number required for the state contest in 1931, and "Bye and Bye", a negro spiritual. At a regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association on April 5, they furnished a part of the program. Mr. James Palmer, a student of music at Michigan State College, has been of great aid to Mr. McIntire in directing the girls.

The purpose of the club was to develop a greater appreciation of music, and at the same time to provide pleasant hours of recreation.

From this group was organized a girls' quartette consisting of Esther Mastrovito, first soprano; Anna Dietrich, second soprano; Donna Purchis, first alto, and Audrey Purchis, second alto.

BOYS' GLEE CLUB

The Boys' Glee Club, under the capable direction of Mr. McIntire, has become a very active organization of approximately seventy members.

At the first of the school year last September, a number of boys grouped together in a special class conducted the eighth hour four times weekly. They progressed rapidly and soon became a glee club that was very proficient. Both sacred and secular songs were used, but care was taken that they be of the classical or semi-classical type. Most of the first semester was used for the practicing of the opera, but after this production outside engagements were secured and the boys sang in public on many occasions.

The second semester, owing to the fact the Madrigal Choir had been scheduled for the eighth hour, the boys were forced to meet the third period three days a week; enthusiasm had grown so much in the organization that over seventy signed up as members. Work was immediately begun on a minstrel show to be put on in collaboration with the Philharmonic Club. The finished production was presented for Eastern students in an assembly April 7, and then was taken to Battle Creek as one of the exchange assemblies.

Several times an octet of the club members sang on assembly programs. It consisted of Andrews and Smith, first tenors; Bissell and Fleischauer, second tenors; Brightman and Massuch, baritone, Durkee and Pettit, bass.

"LITTLE OLD NEW YORK"

The four act royalty play "Little Old New York", written by Rida Johnson Young, was presented by the senior class in November, 1931.

The Michael O'Days of Ireland, learning that if there were a boy in the family he would be heir to a fortune left by a New York kinsman, conspire to substitute Patricia O'Day as the real heir. John Astor, who has Pat's money in trust, will not let her use it, even when she wishes to back Larry in the building of a steamship. Finding that Larry, with whom she has fallen in love, will be cheated out of the money if she receives it, Pat risks a jail sentence by confessing.

Miss Garrity and Mr. Clark were the very capable directors of this production.

"TOMMY"

A comedy with all the color, life, and spontaneity which characterizes this modern age was presented on February 26, by the Senior B Class. "Tommy" was written by Howard Lindsay and Bertrand Robinson.

Tommy, a truly polite young man who brings candy to his would-be mother-in-law and cigars to his would-be father-in-law, is the typical model of virtue until an uncle of the girl, Marie Thurber, gives him advice which he proceeds to carry out.

Marie's parents fairly push her into the young man's arms until he seemingly repudiates his word of honor concerning a deal with Mr. Thurber, and otherwise exhibits very bad manners. Tommy finally succeeds in clearing his name, however, in time to save Marie from marrying Bernard, a "go-getter" type of fellow.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

In September of 1930, Eastern High School was elected as a chapter of the National Honor Society. Since that time, this chapter has accomplished many things.

During the first year a plaque was bought from the proceeds of a play put on by the members, and the society made its presence felt throughout the school. The aims of the club, to promote scholarship, to stimulate a desire to render service, and to develop character were carried out to a great extent.

With the second year of its existence came many new projects, each to be accomplished under the able guidance of Mr. Rich, the sponsor. Toward the end of the first semester the society decided to meet as a dinner club. To everyone's knowledge this was an innovation in high school organizations. After a great deal of hard work, everything was finally in readiness for the first meeting. Screens had been built to seclude the club diners from others who ate in the cafeteria, and on a Wednesday noon in February the first dinner meeting was held. J. W. Sexton, Superintendent of Lansing schools, honored the assemblage with his presence and gave a speech commending the society on their work. He pointed out to the members the need of an education and urged them to carry on as they had started. After this first successful meeting, many more were held, all of which were just as enjoyable.

During the second semester the annual play was given. Through the efforts of Miss A. Garrity, director of the Senior B plays, "The Will O' the Wisp," an Irish comedy drama, was very successfully presented April 15.

Membership in this organization is necessarily limited. They are selected by members of the faculty, only those in the upper-third of their class and in either the Junior A or Senior classes being eligible. The students elected are usually leaders in some other activities in addition to being good scholars. Those who find themselves in this society can be proud of the fact, and those not in it have something to aspire to.

QUILL AND SCROLL

Quill and Scroll, National Honorary Society for High School Journalists, was added to the club curriculum of Eastern in November of 1931. Under the guidance of Miss Nellie Grohe, sponsor of Quill and Scroll, the Quaker Chapter has undertaken three worth-while projects.

During the first year of its existence the group published on May 15, a complete issue of "The Easterner", the school paper. Twenty students entered the National Awards Contest in March of that year, and Bill Betts and Joseph Cherwinski received honorable mention.

At the beginning of the second year, ten new members were admitted to the society by the national secretary-treasurer because of their superior talent in creative writing. Combining with the Writers' Club at Christmas, another edition of "The Easterner" was produced.

The past semester was spent in producing a book of the best creative writing of Eastern High School to be presented to the library when completed. Howard Smith was elected editor.

Qualifications for membership are: (1) students must be at least juniors, (2) in the upper third of their class, (3) their creative work must be recommended by the sponsor, (4) they must be approved by the national secretary-treasurer.

GIRL RESERVES

To promote friendships, to sponsor service activities, to create an interest in world fellowship, and to develop a high moral standard among girls—these comprise the aims of the Eastern High School Friendship Club of Girl Reserves. Meetings were held every other Thursday with lessons on social usages, physical culture, and many other interesting things.

The Girl Reserves have had a varied and exciting program this past year. They have been on outings to the W. A. A. cabin at the college, and to the Y. W. C. A. cabin at Lake Lansing, not to forget the Thanksgiving Party for the old ladies, the one at Christmas for the kiddies, and the May Party at the Y.W.C.A. with their boy friends. They also sent delegates to the Girl Reserve Conference at Battle Creek. Probably one of the biggest projects was the program given at general assembly, several plays being produced typifying the work of the Girl Reserves.

HI-Y CLUB

The club was a very active one this year, having some of the finest speakers and programs in its history. In addition to the regular meetings there were two banquets held at the Y.M.C.A., and two get-togethers at the Lion's Den at Lake Lansing. The principal speakers at the meetings were Mr. Sexton, Rev. Flowerday of the Michigan Ave. M. E. Church, Rev. Tasman of the St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rev. Reamon of the Universalist Church, and Mr. Herman, a Y.M.C.A. representative of India. Mr. K. G. Smith of the State Vocational Guidance Department spoke at one of the banquets.

Several boys represented the Eastern Hi-Y at the State Older Boys' Conference at Ann Arbor, and brought back valuable material for the club. These boys were Lee Trumble, Wayne Sheathelm, Joe Luger, Max Kaiser, Arthur Hudson, and Steward McDonald. Those who represented the club in a district conference at East Lansing were Arthur Hopkins, Arthur Hudson, Charles Howald, Joe Luger, Wayne Clark, and Stewart McDonald.

Other activities of the club are its basketball team, intermittent swims in the pool, and a horse-shoe tournament.

Every year the Hi-Y sponsors the Mothers' Day assembly program. L. L. Tyler of Alma College was the speaker at this year's program and Stewart McDonald was chairman.

LATIN CLUB

The Senatus Populusque Romanus, or S. P. Q. R. as the Latin Club is commonly called, aims to "promote a fuller appreciation of Roman life and literature" in the programs planned by the Aedile and presented by the members of the club. Latin songs, Latin games, readings and plays, sometimes in English and sometimes in Latin, and reports on various mythological or other allied subjects make up the larger part of these programs.

The club also aims to promote scholarship in Latin by awarding two different medals to people who graduate "magna cum laude". The Bimillennium Vergilianum bronze medal is given to those students who complete three years of Latin, if the third year is Vergil, and the Eta Sigma Phi National Honor Society medal, also of bronze, to those with four years of Latin with high average in the fourth year.

SPANISH CLUB

A small club, composed of the most ardent students of the Spanish classes, was organized this year under Mr. Anderson's sponsorship. Because of his unusual experience in travel and teaching, he was able to stimulate great interest in a series of programs. Two very interesting speakers were obtained: Mr. Raymond Moore, a former student of Eastern, who told of his trip to South America, and Mrs. J. B. Clark, a native of Spain, who gave an excellent talk about Spanish customs.

The interest of the club lay in the reading of Spanish newspapers and foreign correspondence, while the members of the club also took an active part in games, plays, and the singing of native songs. A real effort was made to speak this language as much as possible during the meetings, and it is hoped they will eventually be carried on entirely in Spanish.

During the first semester the members conducted a candy sale, while a Christmas party was also enjoyed. On April 14, in collaboration with the Senior B class, they presented a Pan-American Day program. This was in the form of a fiesta with gayly colored booths and the crowds of people in their holiday attire. Spanish dancing and singing was enjoyed, while a bull fight climaxed the entertainment.

FRENCH CLUB

We speak English because we have to. We speak French because we like to. Many students have decided they would like to take up the study of the French language after hearing Monsieur Sage tell of his adventures in that land of styles.

This year, to create even more interest in the club, initiations were held for each member. In this ceremony the person gave up his American and took a French name. Everything was conducted according to custom.

One of the highlights of the year was the Christmas party held in the little auditorium. A general French atmosphere prevailed, especially when a French meal, consisting of cheese and cider was served. At one of the meetings Mrs. Helen Wright talked to the club about her two years of musical training in Paris. Along with this she sang "The Marseillaise" and gave an original composition in French.

The members of the club endeavored to learn the history, development, and culture of the French country as well as the habits of its people.

WRITERS' CLUB

The Writers' Club was formed for the advancement of a general knowledge of books and for perfection in writing. Several fields of experiment are open in which the members are free to work. Prose is discussed extensively, the discussion embracing author, period, style, and popularity. Poetry, however, seems to be the more popular means of original expression. Some very creditable work of this nature has been produced. During the period from September, 1931, to June, 1932, the club handled four main projects:

The first piece of work was the joint publishing of the "Easterner" with the Quill and Scroll. The Writers' Club wrote the second and third pages, the work including make-up, layout, editorials, literary, and feature news.

The second project was a play which the club members both wrote and produced at a school assembly in January, 1932. It was called "High School Harlequinade." The play was a result of the study of old Italian drama.

Project three was a Courtesy Week program presented in assembly. This program was made up of music, humor, dialogue, and costume, all depicting phases of everyday courtesy.

The most important piece of work accomplished was a collection of material written by members of the Club. This anthology, compiled in June, represented all that the Writers' Club stood for in fine writing.

HISTORY CLUB

Upon the organization of the History Club, the members decided that its aims would be to give the students a greater opportunity in the study of the Social Sciences than could be gained from a classroom. The pursuits of the club include the study of biographies, Michigan histories, current events, historical fiction and itinerary talks on places of both modern and historical interest.

The club has continued to uphold the purposes as is shown by the interesting and educational programs during the past semester. Mr. F. E. Mills, a local merchant, gave a vivid description of his trip to the Holy Land. His talk gained much of its interest from the pictures with which he illustrated the speech. Two interesting reports were given by faculty members: Mr. Wilson related his experience as a school boy in England, and Mr. Sage gave a book review on the historical novel, "A Daughter of the Seine", which is a biography of the life of Madame Roland.

The club also had its social events, a Halloween costume party and a Christmas party. Miss Knevels is the enthusiastic sponsor of this club.

TRAVEL CLUB

The purposes set forth by the constitution state that the Travel Club wishes "to stimulate an appreciation of travel, to broaden the geographical viewpoint of its members, to study the modes of travel, and to become familiar with the customs of other countries so as to better understand international relations."

The Travel Club, chartered and organized in September, 1931, is at the present time under the supervision of Miss Lois Manning, one of Eastern's science instructors. The meetings are held every Monday of the even weeks in room 1-96, the third period. There are about thirty-five members in the club, each of whom must complete at least one project in the club, such as a scrap-book or a model of some means of travel.

During the past semester the meetings have been entirely devoted to short talks given by people who have traveled extensively. Mr. Wilson of the Industrial Department told of a trip to his home in England, where he was born and educated. On November 30, 1931, Mr. Caldwell, minister of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, spoke very interestingly about his trip to Europe last summer. Mr. Caldwell's main purpose on his voyage was that of visiting and witnessing the Passion Play, which is given every ten years in Oberammergau. On December 14, 1931, Mr. Sage, head of the French Department, was present and spoke about Parisian Christmas. Mr. Anderson, of the Spanish Department, was a visitor on February 13, 1932, and spoke about his experiences as a teacher in Turkey.

In May, 1931, thirty-six members of the club made the Pilgrimage to the Nation's Capitol at Washington, D. C. A trip to Niagara Falls was taken in January, 1932, by some of the club's members.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

Standing amidst adapted apparatus in the chemistry laboratory at a regular meeting of the Chemistry Club, one of its members demonstrated and lectured upon many different types of gunpowder and blasting powder, which he had been studying and experimenting with for some time. This is an example of the type of work the Chemistry Club sponsors. All are eligible to club membership who wish to experiment scientifically with chemical action and who have had at least one semester of high-school chemistry.

In the above picture are seen different examples of colorful solutions. One solution was such that as you looked into it with the source of light at the side, half of the solution would appear red and the half toward the light would appear green. This was due partly to colloidal particles, which one learns about in chemistry. Upon remaining undisturbed for a period of time the lower portion of the red part of the liquid changed to an orange hue.

The Chemistry Club was organized by energetic science students at the beginning of the second semester, and therefore had but one set of officers this year. The group was interested in fields of chemistry that are left unstudied by the regular chemistry classes because of lack of time and also lack of experience and knowledge. Especially were these students and their adviser interested in stunts to demonstrate the brilliant phenomena of many experiments to the student body, their parents, and other groups. It was also their desire that students should know more about chemistry and its interesting possibilities.

SCIENCE CLUB

The Science Club has been a very active organization since it started last fall. Every two weeks the customary meeting was held and a lecture given, usually with illustrations and demonstrations. Members will probably never forget the lecture by Dr. Clark Chamberlain on his apparatus for measuring, which operates on the basis of the relative wave lengths of eight. That was during the first semester before the members became absorbed in X-ray study.

Since the day last fall when Dr. C. L. Barber donated two truckloads of X-ray equipment to the club, its members have become greatly interested in this powerful invisible ray so capable of serving man. It was not until after the group visited the X-ray department of the Sparrow hospital in the early part of the second semester that the possibilities of reconditioning Dr. Barber's equipment were really realized. There are two tables, two lead X-ray boxes, various tubes, vertical stands that move the tube in any position desired, a large transformer, etc., that were housed in the unfinished gymnasium, just itching for the chance to be put into use by Eastern students. The 1931-32 Science Club leaves a valuable heritage to the school.

DRAMA CLUB

With Miss Benjamin to direct their work, the members of the Drama Club have made great progress, and have had many enjoyable hours together.

The meetings were held regularly every Wednesday during the first semester, but because of a great increase in the number of members the second semester, the club was divided into two groups which met on alternate weeks, with a joint meeting once a month. Their aim was to develop or improve dramatic ability by character study, by criticisms of plays given, and by participating willingly in plays whenever asked. Another aim was to develop clear enunciation, correct speech, poise, and the elimination of stage fright.

The meetings teemed with enthusiasm. At the beginning of each semester a program chairman for each week was decided upon and this method was found to work very well. If, however, for some reason or other, it was impossible to carry out the program as planned, impromptu acting in pantomine proved very entertaining. To add variety, Miss Benjamin often read plays to the delight of everyone. One event which encouraged the Drama Club was the success of their play, "Grandma and Mistletoe," presented at the Christmas meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association. It showed unusual talent and tireless work.

The club feels that through the cooperation of all the members and the sponsor it has had a very successful year, and its ambitions for the future are many.

AUDITORIUM CLUB

The Auditorium Club of Eastern has proved itself to be one of the most valuable clubs of the school. Under the sponsorship of Mr. VanLiere it has carried out several important projects.

Probably the most important of these is the ushering which has been done by this group of students. They have ushered at all the plays and programs given in the auditorium. Some of these were: "Mrs. Fraser," a play which came from New York; "John Ferguson," a tragedy given by the Abbey Players from Ireland; "Chimes of Normandy," the school opera; "Little Old New York," and "Tommy," this year's senior plays. They also ushered at Pattengill stadium for the Central-Eastern game.

During the semester the club has been entertained by several interesting and helpful speeches given by various teachers of Eastern. Mr. Wilson gave a very enlightening talk concerning stage fixtures; Miss Russell told the club about her summer trip to Europe; Mr. Clark explained how stage makeup was applied, and Mr. Sage gave a very humorous and fascinating discussion of the French theatres and their system of ushering.

This club has progressed quite rapidly during its first year and hopes to be of even greater service during the coming semesters.

DANCING CLUB

The Dancing Club, under the sponsorship of Miss Evelyn Hutchison, has made a very great increase since it was first established here in Eastern, proving to be one of the most popular of the clubs among the girls.

The purpose of the organization was to give the girls a general knowledge of the various types of dances, of their execution, and of the benefits to be derived. During the past year they have studied the Character, Ballea, Natural, Soft Shoe, Clog, Tap, and Aesthetic Specialty.

Having studied the art of dancing, they contributed to many programs, some of which are listed below with the names of the dances portrayed:

Central-Eastern Exchange Program	Romance—Character
Christmas P. T. A. Meeting	Minuet—Soft Shoe
Opera	All Rhythm—Character
Jackson Program	Specialty—Waltz
Senior Day	Quadrille
George Washington's Birthday	Military Act—Athletic
Parent Teacher Meeting	Military Act—Athletic
Junior-Senior Prom	Pirate—Character

As a final project, the club put on a Dance Review for the P. T. A. on May 3, which demonstrated all the types of dances studied during the past year.

TUMBLING CLUB

Tenseness filled the air of the gymnasium. One boy was swinging on the high bar. Suddenly his momentum became faster, his body seemed to slip, and he sailed away from the bar. A carefully timed tucking of the body, a pleasing thud as he landed feet first on the mats, and a flying somersault had been completed. The Tumbling Club was in action.

Tumbling requires real bodily control and confidence—confidence both in oneself and in the ability of his team-mates. Months of training are required to perform even one stunt perfectly. This year sixteen girls and eight boys overcame the great human physical weakness and learned to rely on precision—the key to working together in performing stunts that make audiences marvel.

Oftimes the girls and boys worked together on "tumbles". This cooperation was attained through the organization known as the Tumbling Club. From this group, which met but once a week, were picked those who had perfected stunts for exhibition. Coach R. A. Winston performed with excellent precision in demonstrating to this group. The teams performed before several luncheon clubs, at meetings of the Parent-Teacher Association, and at a number of basketball games, while one exhibition was given for the Girls' League.

The training that tumbling gives to its ardent students is deep rooted and gives that person who trains thoroughly a firm foundation of physical confidence and mental control over the body. Though this type of training has its dangers, a background of level headedness and precision will carry one through thrilling experiences of physical exhilaration.

PRINTING CLUB

The Printing Club was organized for the first time during the school year of 1931-32. The boys who have selected printing as a vocation decided to create a club for the purpose of increasing their observation of printing as a series of trades. This was to be done through visiting trips and talks by local tradesmen.

A trip to Kalamazoo with the Science Club was the outstanding event for the first semester. The Kalamazoo Paper Company and the Vegetable Parchment Company were visited. Local visits have included trips to the State Journal, the Industrial School, Hermes Printing Company, and Franklin-DeKleine Company.

The membership is limited to advanced printing pupils, and twenty is fixed as the maximum number. These are the boys who work on the "Easterner", school programs, posters, and office forms.

The club has taken a stand to improve both the quality and appearance of every job leaving the shop.

PHILHARMONIC CLUB

One of the new clubs formed this semester, The Philharmonic Club, as its name implies, was composed of rising young musicians desirous of gaining instruction and practice in the playing of harmonicas and string instruments. These string instruments include guitars, banjos, ukeleles, and mandolins.

At club meetings, after the business had been disposed of, a short program was presented by the members, then practice was held for a harmonica band. Mr. McConnell, father of one of the members, entertained the club on one occasion by playing a guitar and harmonica at the same time. Several times Delbert Palmer visited the club and performed on his piano-accordian, accompanied by Dick McConnell.

The club was composed of approximately twenty members, a number of whom participated in the assembly program given at Battle Creek. Harmonica bands have met with success in other schools, and it is hoped that Eastern's will have a larger organization another year. Mr. Clark sponsored the club.

QUAKER BUSINESS CLUB

The Quaker Business Club is a cooperative enterprise, a group of Eastern High School students banded together for mutual helpfulness. The club affords opportunity for self-improvement in the field of commercial education. An effort is made to assist commercial students in the type of work they need for their future vocations. The professional and educational requirements of students interested in the profession of stenography, bookkeeping, and salesmanship are emphasized in the programs and activities of the club.

Interesting as well as beneficial programs were enjoyed by the club during the past year. The Capital National Bank, the Capital Bank Tower, and a session of the State Legislature were visited, which proved instructive to everyone. Educational talks were given at two of the meetings by Principal Dwight H. Rich and Reverend Donald T. Grey. In order that members of the club might become better acquainted with each other, several social gatherings were held. The outstanding project of the year was a trip taken by this organization to Battle Creek.

Several selling projects were responsible for the successful financial year the club experienced. Mr. Ralph B. Peterman, head of the Commercial Department in Eastern High School, was the very capable sponsor.

AVIATION CLUB

After being disbanded with the rest of the clubs at the close of the school year last June, the Aviation Club reorganized with the opening of school in September, drew up a new constitution and applied for a club charter.

Having so successfully completed their previous year with a trip to the Detroit Aircraft Show, the club again set the show as their goal for the 1931-32 year. A set of programs was arranged, bringing to the club prominent aviators of Lansing and also those connected with airplane manufacture.

Dr. Kimball of the New York Weather Bureau visited Lansing on two occasions and gave talks before the club. Dr. Kimball was the meteorologist and personal adviser of Lindbergh, Byrd, and Chamberlin in their record-smashing flights. Principal D. H. Rich gave several interesting talks on his pre-war training in the army. Mr. Wilson, who served as an aviation mechanic with the allied armies during the world war, was called upon to tell of his many and varied war experiences. Other speakers included John Matthews, transport pilot and prominent Lansing airman, and Ivan Driggs, one of the foremost light-plane designers in America.

During the second semester a ground school course was organized. This course was open to any of the students but was made possible through the efforts of the Aviation Club. John Matthews was engaged as the instructor; evening classes were held from February until the last of April. Credit is due Mr. Flory for his able sponsorship.

RADIO CLUB

The Radio Club counts 1931-32 as a most active and successful year. Meetings have been well attended and have been devoted to discussion and code practice. The greatest part of the work centered about short wave radio, because of the fact that many of the members were striving to pass the government examination and claim their amateur operator's license.

Interesting trips were made to the State Police Radio Station WRDS at East Lansing. The Gladmer Theater was visited and a very profitable hour spent in examining the "talkie" machines.

The great interest and work of the club members is in the school short wave station W8KN. This station is maintained and operated by the club members. The transmitters and receivers used are not of a very permanent nature, but rather experimental, being dismantled and re-built many times each semester. Several of the members own or are building short wave radio stations at their homes.

The school station is in room 1-112 and serves as a general meeting place for the club members during their spare time. The station is open for inspection at all times and Mr. Wilson, the capable adviser always welcomes new members. The only condition of membership is a real interest in radio and a willingness to learn more of the radio art.

FUR AND FEATHER CLUB

Nights spent out under the stars by the side of a campfire, early mornings spent in prowling along streams and through woods—these are some of the happy experiences to be remembered by members of the Fur and Feather Club. It is primarily a hiking club, having as its purpose the study of birds and animals. Field glasses and bird manuals for field study have been purchased, and green field suits for wear when stalking wild life were made.

At one of the club programs, Dr. Bartholomew told of interesting experiences in his study of the feathery tribe. Movies from the conservation department were also enjoyed, and various projects, such as bird houses, bird feeders, and protective devices were carried out by members of the club. Debates were held on the value of certain species of birds, and reports were given on field trips, on the building of bird observatories, and on stories and accounts of birds and animals.

Hikes in rain or sun over snow or green sward led them to interesting places into the secrets of bird and animal home life. Jokes, stories, and confidences about the campfire between bites of bacon or gulps of fragrant coffee lent charm to these expeditions.

THE ATHLETIC BOARD OF CONTROL

One of the most important and yet least known organizations of the school is The Board of Control of Athletics, which plans the athletic program and budget of finances for the different sports. The purpose of the board is to handle transactions relative to school athletics such as approving awards, making out athletic schedules, and taking care of expenditures.

Perhaps the greatest accomplishment they can claim recently is the development of the organization ticket. For the surprising sum of three dollars and fifty cents students may purchase a coupon book entitling them to attend all home football and basketball games, swimming meets. They are also accredited with a subscription for the school publication, the Easterner, as well as a partial payment on the Lantern. Holders of tickets are given a discount on the price of admission to school plays and class parties. In the fall a Christmas card campaign was sponsored by this group under the general direction of Henry Fine, the proceeds from which were applied on the athletic indebtedness. On senior award day in January, a precedent was established by the granting to four senior girls of outstanding athletic ability a major L.

Of all its aims, the board puts the greatest stress on the promotion of good sportsmanship and school spirit, and they feel that their efforts have produced splendid results this year.

CAPTAINS AND TROPHIES

The trophies won by Eastern's teams speak eloquently for themselves. In three years' competition, nineteen trophies have been earned, twice winning the city football and basketball trophies which this year repose at Central. The most coveted trophy is the Five A League All-Sports Plaque. It is an annual award given to the school in the league that has the highest number of points at the end of the school year. Eastern was the first school to receive this trophy.

All of the Quaker athletic teams are represented in this picture by their captains. Below are the captains, their sports, and their achievements.

Captain John Kruszewski—Football—1929, '30, '31.
All City 1930, Honorable mention for All City and All Five A League teams 1931.

Captain John Turik—Basketball—1931, '32.
All City 1931, '32.

Captain Max Kaiser—Track—1931, '32.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

To the coaching staff of Eastern, the students extend sincere and heartfelt gratitude for their work in the field of sports.

The football destinies of Eastern High School are intrusted into the hands of Coaches W. A. Graff, J. K. Burnham, Alan Bovard and H. C. Feeman. Since coming to Eastern in 1928, Walter Graff has had the position of head coach in football, basketball and track. To build successful teams required experience and willingness to work. Mr. Graff has been coaching since his graduation from Western State Teachers' College in 1920, and the experience he gained before coming to Eastern has proved its worth. In four short years he has built up teams in this school that are followed by fans all over the state.

Assistant Coach Jake Burnham has been Graff's helper for four years and with each new season his worth and ability have stood out. "Jake" has charge of the linemen on the gridiron and it is due to his capable and efficient work that the lines of the Quaker football teams have been recognized throughout the state for their strength and power. Besides coaching football, Mr. Burnham is the reserve basketball coach. Upon his shoulders falls the task of preparing the boys for the varsity. In the spring, one can always find Jake on the track. He takes charge of the field events, assisting Mr. Graff. Mr. Burnham was graduated from the Central State Teachers' College in 1928. There he won his letter in three sports: football, basketball, and track.

Last fall a new face was seen on the football field; it was that of Alan Bovard. On graduating from the University of Michigan in 1931, Mr. Bovard came to Eastern to teach mathematics and to assist Coaches Graff and Burnham in handling the gridiron prospects. In addition he coaches baseball and assists Burnham in handling the basketball reserves. While at the U. of M., "Al" won his letters in football and was named on the All Conference football team in 1929. In 1930 he was assistant line coach at the university, while taking post graduate work. We hope Mr. Bovard likes us and will be with us in the future, continuing to demonstrate his capability as coach.

FOOTBALL SEASON REVIEW

The gridiron hopes of Eastern were not exceptionally bright at the beginning of last season. When the call for candidates was first issued, over one hundrd boys answered, eager for hard work. Of these, only four lettermen of the Five A League championship team were back. They were Captain John Kruszewski, Leo Pricco, John Turik, and Eugene Raff. These boys were counted on to fill their posts at L.T., L.E., R.T., and Q.B. The big job was to fill the gaps left open by such stars as "Lefty" Miller, "Chet" Ross, Ugo Pricco, and Frank Hoff.

In two weeks time these holes were filled and the team was ready for its first game. On the night of September 25, a green, inexperienced, but willing eleven met the Ithaca Farmers. The Ithaca team was the pre-game favorite, but when the opening whistle blew, the blue and gold of Eastern tore down the field with the fury of a young avalanche. Under the leadership of Kruszewski, Pricco, and Turik, the "Fighting Quakers" completely outplayed the Ithaca boys and smothered them by a score of 44 to 0.

The game put a bit of confidence into the boys and the next week they worked hard and long preparing for the game at Bay City. On October 3, they packed their bags and traveled to meet the Wolves of Bay City. The opening kick-off was the start of a vicious battle. The Quakers had to summon all of their strength and strategy against the up-state lads who had a well organized and experienced team. The game was a breath-taker. Twice Eastern threatened to score; once the perspiring Pennsylvanians had the ball on the one-yard line only to be stopped. The game seemed to be a deadlock when suddenly Eastern threw a pass. It was intercepted; only the goalposts were ahead of the ballcarrier; a touchdown seemed inevitable when a gold jersey came from nowhere and stopped him on the four yard line. It was Raff. The Quakers made every effort to repel the final onslaught of the Wolves, but in vain. When the gun announced the finish, Eastern was on the end of the 6-0 tally.

The following Friday, October 9, Saginaw Arthur Hill was met on Pattengill Field in a night game. Neither team could get under way as the field was a sea of slippery mud. The teams seesawed between the twenty yard stripes for most of the evening. Toward the close of the game, Doucharme, Arthur Hill star, broke loose on a long pass and was headed for a touchdown, but Raff saved the day by catching him from behind. After an hour of drab playing the game ended in a scoreless tie.

Battle Creek's Bearcats were next on the schedule. The game was of great interest since it was Eastern's first Five A League encounter and Battle Creek was leading in the league. Again the Quakers entered the field the underdogs. With the generalship of Captain Kruszewski and the fine teamwork of the Blue and Gold, the boys handed the Food City a trouncing, with a score of 13-0. Eastern's banner carriers completely outplayed the Bearcats in every phase of play. They stopped sweeping end-runs and didn't give an inch to Battle Creek's line plunges. Pricco and Kruszewski proved themselves impregnable by stopping three bone crushing drives when Battle Creek was only inches from the last stripe.

With the Bearcat's scalp neatly tucked under their belts, the Quakers prepared to meet Jackson High. On the night of October 23, the Quakers met a worthy foe in the Prison City eleven. From the opening whistle to the final gun, both teams battled furiously. During the first half, Eastern's gridmen out-smarted the Vikings time after time and scored a touchdown. After the rest period, Jackson opened up its bag of tricks. They marched down the field, completely baffling our boys by their double and triple passes and their hidden ball tricks. At last, in the final minutes of play, our stone wall gave way and Jackson battered their way to a touchdown with the final score 7-7.

Benton Harbor's Tigers were Eastern's next opponents. The Tigers boasted of a big, powerful, and fast eleven and were favorites over the more inexperienced Quaker lads. But once more the dope was upset and our team more than surprised the Harborites. During the entire first half, Benton Harbor had the ball only three times while Eastern had possession more than three-quarters of the time. The linemen charged and the ball toters ran so that at the rest period, Benton Harbor found themselves 14 points behind. Early in the third quarter, Robert Frakes, Benton Harbor's All-State Halfback, broke through Eastern's defense and raced 64 yards for their lone touchdown. After that touchdown the Quakers again settled down to business and at the close of the fourth period they were on the long end of a 14-6 score.

Only two more games remained to be played and they were both tough assignments. November 7 found the boys packed and ready to leave for Ann Arbor at 6:30 A.M. The game with the University City gridders was scheduled at 10:30 A.M. and the boys had to leave rather early. When they arrived at Ann Arbor it was cold and snowing. At the beginning of the game the boys were still cold and stiff from their three hour ride. Although thus handicapped, the game was a fight to the finish. The experienced Purple and White team knocked on Lansing's goal three times and three times they were stopped. At last, Eastern's "Iron Men" gave way and Ann Arbor crashed their way to a 6 point victory.

Four days after the Ann Arbor Defeat, Central's Big Reds were met for the city championship. The four year old feud was renewed and the greatest battle of the year was on. From the thud of the first kick-off to the loud report of the final gun the teams drove, tackled, blocked, and ran as if possessed by demons. Central proved their worth by scoring a touchdown before five minutes of the game had been played. But Eastern proved its fighting spirit by holding the Big Reds on even terms. Near the close of the first half, Henry Fine broke loose on a double pass behind the line and ran within a yard of the goal line. Central was thrown off balance and John Turik found a gap, opened by Kruszewski and Swartz, to crash for a touchdown. The score stood 6-6 at the rest period. The third quarter the "Fighting Quakers" held the Big Reds on even terms, outplaying them at times, but when the final period got under way, Eastern's warriors gave way under the vigorous attack of Central and the West Side Boys pounded their way to an 18-6 victory. Thus, after two years as city champs, Eastern gave the coveted trophy to Central who won the City Championship, the Five A League Championship, and the State Championship.

Only six men will be lost by graduation and with the return of five lettermen and a host of reserves, a wonderful team can be expected in 1932.

RESERVE FOOTBALL

Under the coaching of H. C. Feeman the reserves built up a team that could put up a great stand against the varsity. Also by furnishing stiff opposition they strengthened and tempered the varsity and by running through plays and formations of coming opponents familiarized the regulars with the type of plays they would encounter.

Those who won reserve letters were: L. Winner, R. McKinstry, R. Joseph, C. Joseph, R. Chubb, L. Harkness, L. Chase, M. Ross, L. Schray, H. Creyts, L. Osgood, W. Miller, W. Kedrock, H. Hollenbeck, W. The Reserves played seven games, winning four and losing three. Here is their schedule:

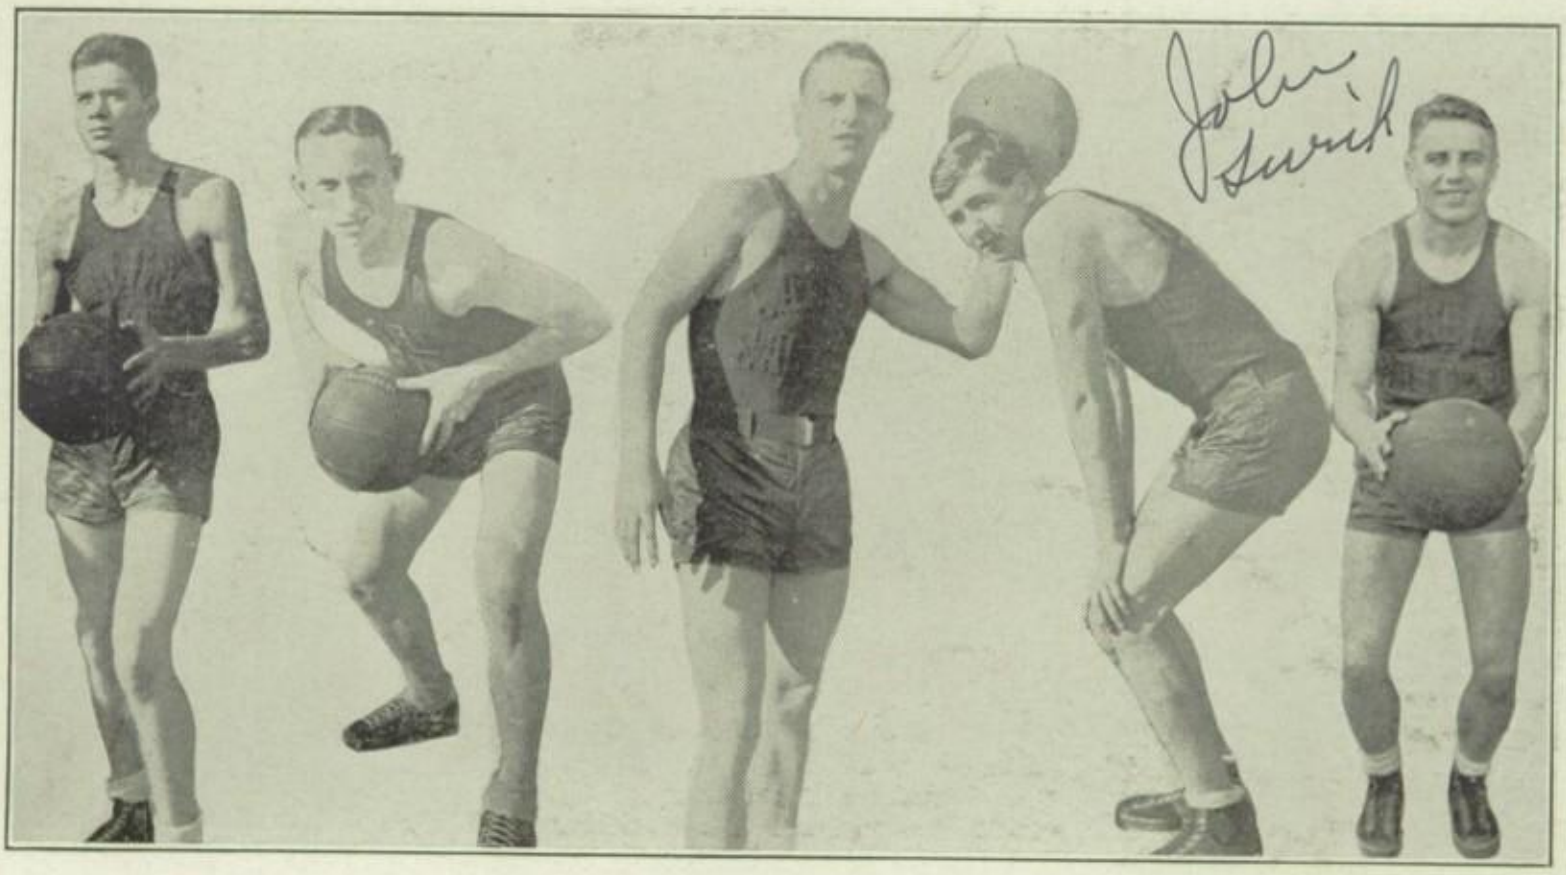
VARSITY BASKETBALL

Before the echoes of the Central-Eastern grid battle had completely died away, Coach Walter Graff issued a call for basketeers. Only two veterans were returning, John Turik and Leo Pricco. The material was promising and Coach Graff had a team of sophomores and juniors ready for the first game against the alumni on December 9. The alumni outplayed the Quakers in every point of the game and after a hectic four periods the former Eastern Stars were victorious with a score of 20 to Eastern's 13. The next night the lads were sorely outclassed by the Battle Creek five, and came trailing at the end of a 33 to 18 score. On December 16, they met the Bay City quintet in our gym; the inexperienced Quakers could not cope with the offense of the Up-State team and were administered a smarting defeat, 28 to 10. Determined to break the series of losses the team turned their hearts to the game with Jackson's Vikings. When the two teams met on January 6, the Quakers gave all they had but for the fourth time they met defeat, bowing to the Vikings 9 to 4.

The Ann Arbor cagers were Eastern's next opponents. Ann Arbor, one of the strongest teams in the state, kept the Quakers guessing throughout the game and covered the boys thoroughly. Eastern's boys fought a losing game but did not give up until the game was over and they were on the short end of the 22 to 17 count. On January 20, Central was met at the Vocational Field House. Central had a team that was runners up in the 1931 State Tournament and did the same thing this season. Eastern's quintet had nothing but pluck and willingness to rely on, and what pluck they showed! The giant Sophomore, Jens



McCaffrey Roe Hulliberger Kowalski Turik

Kowalski, played heads-up basketball all during the game and the whole team gave their best, but it seemed that defeat could not be shaken off. The Big Reds won, 17 to 9. Only one game remained on the first semester's schedule—second game with Jackson. The Pennsylvania Avenue five had gained a great deal of experience and on the night of January 21, they turned the tide, winning over Jackson, 15 to 5.

Ypsilanti was played on February 3. The Hurons put up a great game, but with the accurate shooting of Kowalski and Hulliberger, the Quaker courtmen won, 17 to 16. The following week, Central's Big Reds were met for the second time. The Quakers, with a far better team than they had the first semester, were out to conquer, but the Big Reds were out for the same purpose. Again the tall West Siders proved that they were a better team by winning the City Championship game, 11 to 9. On the week end of February 17 and 18, Mt. Clemens and Grosse Pointe were met. Their efforts were well rewarded, for when they returned home, they brought along two victories. Mount Clemens was smothered by a 29 to 16 score, and the Grosse Pointe quintet was defeated, 18 to 16, a game in which everybody on the Quaker squad saw action.

There were only two games left to be played. First, Ann Arbor playing on its home floor at the university city stopped the Quakers, 20 to 14. The next night the Battle Creek Five was met at our gym. Each team was out to win at all costs. The score was 14 to 13 in Eastern's favor with only thirty seconds to play and the ball in the Food City team's possession. The man with the ball shot just as the last whistle blew, and the oval sank through the net, ringing up another loss for Eastern.

RESERVE BASKETBALL

The success of the varsity depends largely on the ability of the reserve material. The main purpose of the reserve team is to prepare boys for the varsity, by teaching them the fine points of the game and giving them valuable experience. The team has a definite schedule like the varsity and they play all of the preliminary games.

Those who received the "R" in basketball this year were: J. Brower, L. Celentino, G. Dahlberg, O. Danby, J. Gardner, H. Groesbeck, W. Miller, W. Myers, A. Kichak, I. Kolberg, F. Lamb, A. Relf, L. Padgett, B. Randall, J. Smith, W. Van Riper.

CROSS COUNTRY

Although Coach Winston's harriers suffered several defeats in 1931, they won the Five A League Championship, the City Championship with Central, and placed Maxim Kaiser second in the State Cross Country Meet at Ypsilanti.

In the dual meet on September 26, the Quakers took revenge for the defeat which was administered them by Central in 1930 by trouncing the West Siders with a score of 34-21. Captain Stuart Frankford and Maxim Kaiser tied for first place, setting a new record for the two-mile course. They ran it in 10:50.

During the following two weeks the teams journeyed to Flint and Kalamazoo, respectively. They were defeated in both of these engagements by a very close score. The outstanding performer of these two meets was Kaiser, who won first place in both of them, setting a new course record each time.

For all the effort spent in grooming themselves for the Five A League Meet on October 17 at Battle Creek, they were well rewarded. They won the meet with ease, placing five men, and again Kaiser set a new course record.

After the Five A League Meet came the Regional Meet at Flint. The Quakers did not fare so well in the motor city—they ended nearer the bottom than the top. Kaiser was the only lad to qualify for the State Meet and although only a junior, he took second place.

Captain Frankford and Donald Smith are graduating, but with the return of the others a fine spirit is expected next fall.

TRACK TEAM 1931

The beginning of April found a host of boys in track clothes out for practice, trying to win a berth on the track team. The prospects were bright, although only three letter men were back; these three men, however, were some of the outstanding tracksters in the state. They were Captain Frank Hoff, one of the four best hurdlers; Robert Godfrey, Hoff's understudy in the hurdles, and Leo Pricco, who had placed at the State Meet in the high jump. Besides these lettermen were stars of junior high days such as Turik and Armstrong.

The season opened with the Defiance College Invitational Meet for Michigan and Ohio high schools at Defiance, Ohio. To this meet, on April 25, Coach Graff took eleven men. Here the cream of Michigan's and Ohio's track men competed. When the last event was finally run, Eastern's boys had scored nineteen points for sixth place. Captain Hoff was the highest scorer of the meet, winning first place in the 120 high hurdles, the 220 low hurdles, and the running broad jump.

Four days after the Defiance meet, Central's Big Reds were met in a dual meet on Pattengill Field. The meet was one of the most exciting of this season. First Eastern was ahead, then Central forged ahead of her. At last, when all the points were added, Eastern was nosed out by one point—the final count being 61½ to 60½.

Next on the program was a practice meet with the Michigan State Freshmen. It was a three day meet held May 4, 5, 6. The State Freshmen snowed the Quakers under by a top-heavy score.

After the Freshmen meet, the boys settled down to real business in preparation for the Regional Meet at Flint Northern on May 16. Lady Luck travelled with the boys when they journeyed to Flint for the track season's greatest event. Eastern was there to defend a two year championship, and the competition was what in track is termed "fast". Frank Hoff, Max Kaiser, Leo Pricco, and Loyle English were the heroes of the day. Hoff won the high and low hurdles and placed fourth in the broad jump. Kaiser won the mile event; Pricco was undefeated in the high jump, and English won the javelin toss. When the meet closed the officials spent nearly two hours counting their points and Eastern was given first place with 42 5/6 points, and Flint Central only 1/3 of a point behind, with 42½ points. Everyone was certainly warm around the collar until the final score was announced.

With the regional championship safely retained, the boys who won places at Flint entered the State Meet at M. S. C., held on May 23 and 24. After the trial runs were held, eight boys gained entrance into the semi-finals. When the finals arrived, only five boys had qualified. They were: Captain Hoff in the high and low hurdles, Godfrey in the high hurdles, Frankford in the half mile, Kaiser in the mile, and Pricco in the high jump.

Facing the best track stars of the state, Eastern's group of thinclads distinguished themselves. Hoff took second place in the high hurdles, and in the low hurdles took first. Kaiser was nosed out of a first place in the mile after leading three quarters of the race, and Leo Pricco tied for fourth place in the high jump. Eastern scored 12 points and took eighth place in the final standing.

The State Meet out of the way, the team put in one week of intensive preparation for the Five A League Meet. Eastern was the defending champion, and if it defended its championship, it would not only win the track trophy but the Five A All-Sports Trophy as well.

The competition was of the keenest type. The contestants of the five schools ran neck and neck, and battled to gain a few feet on each other. Eastern's colorbearers showed themselves superior, and won the meet with 43 2/3 points.

The final standings were:

Eastern	43 2/3
Central	35 5/6
Jackson	33 1/2
Ann Arbor	22
Battle Creek	19

SWIMMING

The swimming season of the past year has not been precisely a success; neither has it been a failure. The splashing Quakers competed in seven dual meets, of which they won three and lost four.

In a pre-season contest, the Michigan State College Freshmen took Eastern into camp with the score of 43 to 32. Then the alumni gathered together an aggregation of swimmers composed of former Quaker stars and met our team in the pool on January 9. Eastern was victorious in this meet, defeating the grads 42 to 26. Central then came along on January 16 and drowned the Eastern tanksters, 50 to 14. Coach Winston's men came back again the following week to trim the Jackson team, 52 to 23. On January 30, the squad again hit a low spot in season, being defeated by Battle Creek, 53 to 10, in the first meet away from home. Ann Arbor was the next and last victim of the Quaker onslaught. They bowed to Eastern's swimmers to the tune of 51 to 13.

Once again, Central and Eastern met in the natatorium. On February 20, the Big Reds defeated Eastern in a strongly contested meet. The final score was Central 42, Eastern 22. Thus, the Big Reds retained their city swimming title.

Eastern placed third in the Five A League Swimming Meet, scoring twelve an one-half points. Both the sprint and the medley relay teams placed third in the finals. Duane Brailey tied for third place in the two hundred and twenty yard free style swim. The medley relay team finished fourth.

Although a number of the boys will be lost by graduation, Coach Winston is not at all pessimistic about next year's season, as a host of promising reserves will be back to carry the blue and gold colors to victory.

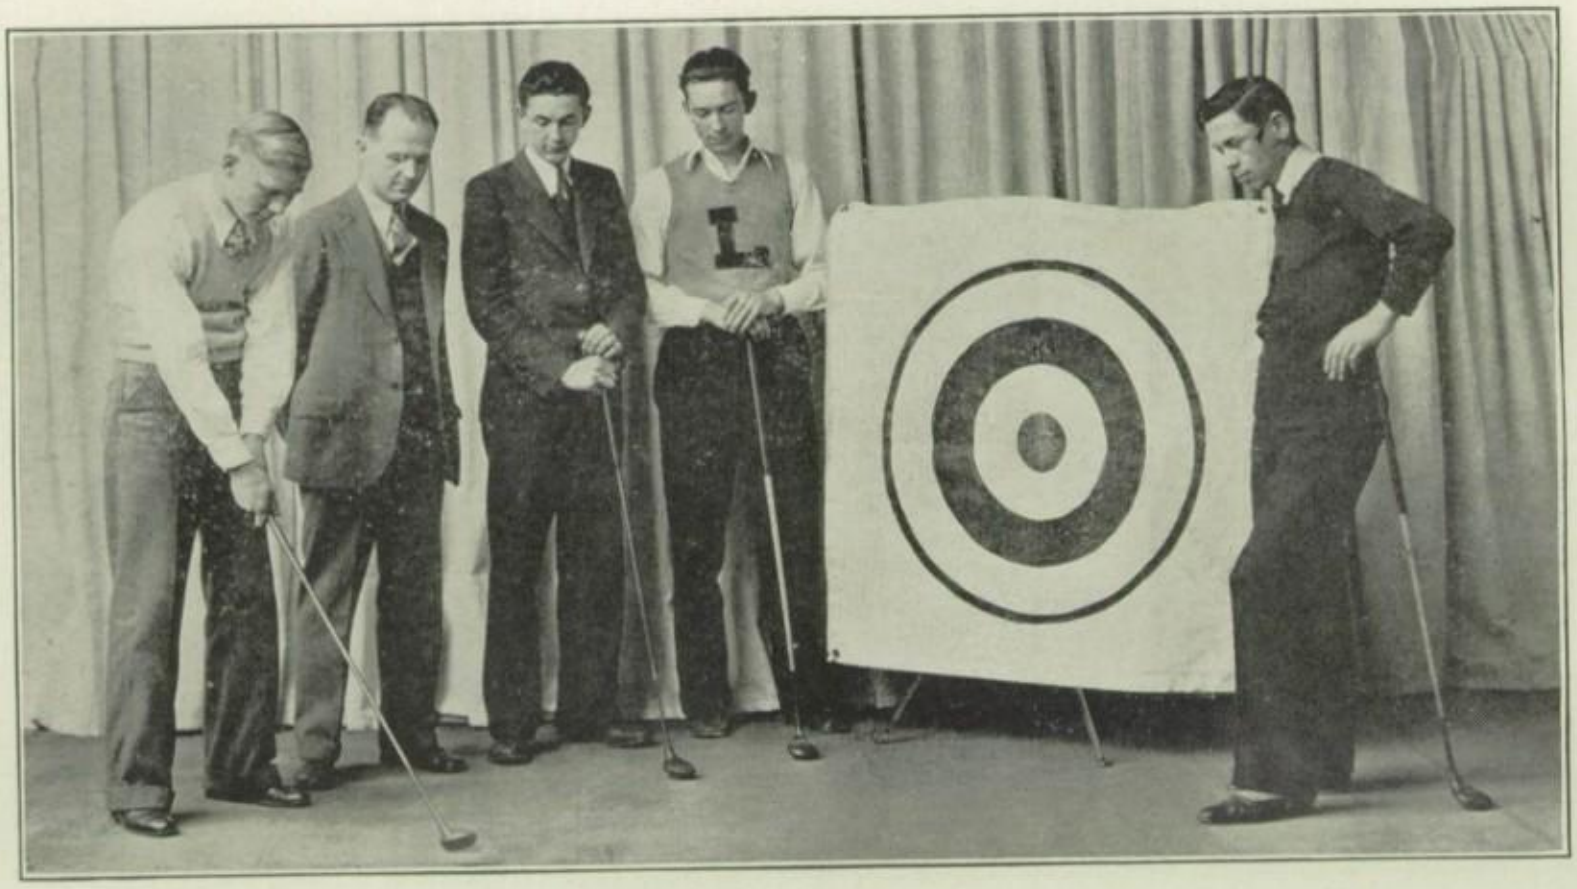
TENNIS 1931

Upholding the reputation gained by former Eastern net teams, the 1931 edition of Fox-coached racquet wielders entered competition with a veteran team and emerged with Five A and Regional championships safely stowed away.

The efficiency of the team is shown by the fact that in the six dual matches, comprising forty-three individual matches, Eastern won thirty-eight to her opponents five. Defeating Battle Creek in her match, Eastern gained the momentum that swept her to the regional championship at East Lansing and to second place in the state meet, being beaten only by Grand Rapids Central. Lansing Central proved to be the biggest obstacle as is proved by the 4-3 victory, assured only after Captain Walt Korney defeated Don Sexton, Central's best, in two sets, 7-5, and 6-0. In the Five A League, Eastern won four and lost none, taking the championship with a perfect record.

With the Five A trophy safely in her trophy case, Eastern entered the regional championships at East Lansing. At the end of a day's play the matches stood at nine all with only Sexton of Central and Korney of Eastern remaining to decide the championship. The final match with Sexton of Central clearly showed the superiority of Korney's brilliant overhead game. The victory was Eastern's, 6-2, 6-2. Encountering the best competition the high schools of Michigan could offer, the doubles team of Korney and Large smashed their way to the semi-finals where they were defeated, after a brilliant match, by Seigal and Nichols of Grand Rapids Central, who became state champions.

Martin, Hershey and Beckwith form the nucleus around which Coach Fox hopes to build another team of championship caliber in 1932.



Fink, Mr. Flory, Heydenburk, Stephan, Brown

GOLF 1931

About the time the grass was beginning to get green, Coach Flory sent out a call for golfers. This sport was still in its infancy in our school but there was a good turnout. From the numerous prospects Mr. Flory picked a promising team. It was composed of Fink, who acted as Captain throughout the season, Heydenburk, Stephan, and Brown.

The team played six matches, four of them being dual meets. The boys were rather unsuccessful, winning only one of the dual meets. They defeated East Lansing, 12-0. The three losses were met at the hands of Battle Creek, Lansing Central, and Jackson.

On May 23, the team competed in the Regional Tournament and took third place. However, none of the boys qualified for the State Meet.

The last meet was the Five A League tournament at Lansing on May 30. The boys took fourth place, keeping out of the cellar with a one point advantage on Lansing Central. The prospects of a winning team for 1932 look very promising since all four members of the 1931 team will be back.

Below is the result of the Five A League tournament held at Groesbeck course on May 30:

Ann Arbor	305
Battle Creek	339
Jackson	339
Eastern	344
Central	345

Evelyn M. Hutchison

R. A. Winston

Evelyn M. Hutchison, girls' physical training and swimming instructor, was graduated from LaCrosse State Teachers' College, attended Milwaukee University, and the University of Wisconsin. While in school, she was President of the Sophonian Society, and Secretary and Treasurer of the Iris Club, as well as being a member of the W. A. A., Life Saving Club, and the Women's League.

During the past year, Miss Hutchison has introduced the Girls' Athletic Association into the school life of Eastern, as well as directing the Life Saving, Dancing Club, Squad Leaders Association and outdoor work.

The G. A. A. is to promote interest in the gym, swimming pool, and intramural sports, to hold a sportsman-like attitude in all athletics, and to develop outside activities that can be carried on through one's life. The membership is composed of all girls who are participating in gym or swimming, and any girl who is interested in athletics.

Mr. Winston, swimming coach, instructor in physical education, and director of intramural sports, was graduated from Michigan Normal College, Ypsilanti. While in college he won honors in the gymnastic team, and as a member of the track team competed in the pole vault and high jump. Since that time he has made athletics his constant occupation, and gymnasiums have always remained his place of business.

His entrance at Eastern concluded three years of service at Central High, where for one year he was track coach, as well as director of gymnastics, physical education, and swimming. Before coming to Central he was the head coach for two years at the River Rouge High School, coaching football, basket ball and baseball.

In May of 1931, Mr. Winston was appointed intramural director at Eastern. Since that time a very extensive program of athletics has been carried out, including home room and interclass volley ball, indoor ball for boys and girls, as well as interclass track, swimming, tennis, golf, and horseshoes.

GIRLS' BASEBALL CHAMPIONS

GIRLS' TRACK

The girls of Eastern annually have an inter-class track meet. Mr. Winston, as intramural director, sponsors the meet each spring. This annual rivalry creates a friendly antagonism between the girls of all classes, and is a great aid in promoting interclass friendship. This offers outside recreation to those of the school who otherwise could not participate in athletic events. It offers wider personal contact as well as more frequent usage of the gymnasium and locker room facilities. Future track possibilities of this extra-curricular activity are increased, the modern conveniences that Eastern offers are put to practical use, and the friendly spirit continually sought is promoted at Eastern.

GIRLS' TENNIS

Girls' tennis in Eastern is rapidly gaining popularity. The girls practice frequently as well as diligently. A tournament is held each spring in which any girl who wishes may enter. The six best from this tournament are elected to play against Central. Last spring Eastern girls defeated their city rivals at Central High.

Bertha Brokob

GIRLS' TENNIS CHAMPION

In addition to being girls' tennis champion of the school, Bertha Brokob has many other athletic accomplishments. She has played on all of the class basket ball, baseball, and volley ball teams since her entrance to Eastern. In 1931 she was a squad leader, and during both '31 and '32 was Home Room Athletic Director. Bertha was a member of the Tumbling Club last semester, and was well known on the tennis team, being a member of the team that defeated Central last spring.

HOME ECONOMICS NEWS

It has been reported that George Hearn severely strained his back recently while lifting a pan of his own biscuits from the oven.

HEARD AT SOPH B ELECTION

Chairman: Nominations are in order for a vice-president.
Virginia Rose: We do not need a vice-president. There is no vice in this class.

THANKS

To the photographers for making the pictures of people good looking—people who were - - well, otherwise.

To the tennis, track, and cross country teams for saving the athletic section from being an obituary.

To several who aided in the art work—Mr. Perkins, Mr. Sherer, and Mr. Phillips might be mentioned.

unusual advantages for those who are aware of future conditions and the necessity for business training.

We feature secretarial training concluding with court reporting.

The ideal training for a young man who has graduated from high school will be found in our C. P. A. (preparatory) course. We use the Walton System of Higher Accounting which is concluded with 7 volumes of Law. New classes will be organized the first Monday of each month.

This school is approved by the State Department of Public Instruction and meets the most rigid requirements of the National Association of Accredited Commercial Schools.

- - and Beyond

Now more than ever are needed those qualities of mind and spirit fostered by education.

As you graduate, you will need decision as to the course in life that you intend to take. You will need courage to carry out that decision. You will need imagination and vision to keep up your courage.

Your future is not based on chance,—it rests with you. Your contribution to the work of the world will determine your success.

For Two Successive Years

OLDSMOBILE HAS LED ALL CARS IN SALES IN THAT POPULAR PRICE FIELD BETWEEN $850 and $1050*

. . . And, continuing its policy of giving the greatest possible value in its products, Oldsmobile has introduced, for 1932, two brilliant new cars . . . a larger, finer Six . . . and a new Straight Eight . . . which represent the greatest values in Oldsmobile's entire 35 years of history. Examination of their many fine features, and a turn at the wheel, will tell you a surprising story of value about these two new cars. Such first-hand knowledge will also make clear why Oldsmobile's popularity continues to increase steadily and surely, in 1932, as it has for the past five years.

TODAY'S Domestic Utilities are made to Burn Oil

The efficient oil-burning operation of many domestic utilities is contributing to the comfort of many thousands of homes, and effecting drastic economies for thousands of owners.

Oil-burning operation saves the drudgery and inconvenience of coal-burning equipment. It saves the high cost of gas, electricity and gas substitutes. It unites the maximum of efficiency, economy, safety and automatic operation into a perfect and positive combination.

The M W line of Oil-Burning Domestic Utilities comprises three sizes of water-heaters for supplying hot water to every size and style of building . . anywhere.

. . . Weather Control Units, for the year 'round air-conditioning of homes, and combining elements for heating, cooling, ventilating and humidifying.

. . . Boiler Units, which are boiler and burner combined into matched unit for steam or hot water heating.

. . . Kitchen Ranges in sizes for domestic and commercial cooking requirements.

Ask for descriptive literature, which tells all about the M W Line, representative of the world's fastest growing industry.
